Anastasie, with Auguste Simon, a trained nurse in the French Hospital, where Sister Anastasie lived, has inrown the Societe Francaise de Bionfalsance, at 329 and 322 West Thirty-fourth street, into a turmoll.

Auguste Simon came to America last March from France, where he had been a nurse in various hospitals. He obtained a piace in the French Hospital in less than a month after his arrival. The hospital is a Roman Catholic in stitution, presided over by nine nuns of the order known as Sisters Marianites of Holy Cross.

Sister Anasthasie, whose name before the entered holy orders was Rosalie Damourette, is a woman of twenty-two years, short, plump, and fair to look upon.

THE WORLD: TUESDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 7, 1893.

Story to the Brooklyn Police. Margaret Brown, of 14 Siegel street, rushed into the Ewen Street Police Court in Brookschutthels and Annie Floss, of the same address.

"They have been following me for some time, and only yesterday I saw them carry a pine tox into the house." she said. "They were discussing how to get rid of my blood and bones when I ran out.

"A year ago they killed Surrogate Humphrey because he was in charge of my estate, the woman added," and they have my life insured for $20,000 in the liancock and Mutual Life Insurance commany!"

She was promised that her story would be investigated.

NEARLY $500,000 INVOLVED.

Serious Charges Made in the Su Against Jacob Miles.

Two actions are now on trial in the Su preme Court, before Justice Barrett, brought by the heirs of Samuel Hurley, by which they seek to recover from William and Jacob Miles a large portion of the estate which they claim to have been deprived of.

Nearly half a million dollars are involved in the litigation, in which some very serious charges are made.

The charges of iroud are absolutely denied and it is declared that the estate of Mr. Hur ley was fully settled up and paid to the heirs for which releases were given.

DON'T WANT NAMES PRINTED. Vivid Picture of the Last Scene Some of the Reasons Given By Bashful Couples to Be Wedded.

The first floor of the house where Mr. A practice which has been growing of Lincoln had just been carried was com-posed of three rooms opening on the stories, is that of suppressing the pubsame corridor. It was in the third, a lication of marriage licenses, by having small room, that the dying man lay, says the names kept from the published list the Marquis de Chambrun in the January All sorts of reasons and excuses are advanced by timid adventurers on the ma His face, lighted by a gas jet, under trimonial sea as to why

His face, lighted by a gas jet, under which the bed had been moved, was pale and livid. His body had already the rigidity of death. At intervals only the still audible sound of his breathing could be faintly heard and at intervals again; the wall be faintly heard and at intervals again; the would be lost entirely. The surgeous did not entertain hope that he might resource a moment's consciousness.

Judge William T. Otto, a thirty years friend of Mr. Lincoln, was standing at the bedside holding his hand. Around the bed stood also the Attorney-General, and the Rey. Mr. Garney, and the Rey. Mr. Garney, paster of the church Mr. Lincoln usually attended.

Leaning against the wall stood Mr. Stanton, who gazed now and then at the dying man's face, and who seemed overwhelmed with emotion. From time to time he wrote telegrams or gave the orders which, in the midst of the crisis, assured the preservation of peace. The remaining members of the Cabinet and several Senators and Generals were pacing up and down the corridor. Thus the night passed on. At last, toward 7 o'clock in the morning, the surgeon announced that death was at hand, and at 7.20 the puise ceased beating.

Every one present seemed then to emerge from the stupor in which the surgeon announced that death was at hand, and at 7.20 the puise ceased beating.
